

B. & O. PLANS TO TAKE LAUREL RUN.

Fight on in Somerset County Court Against Condemnation.

MARKLETON HOTEL CO. FIGHTS

Bond of Only $3,500 Offered and Accepted Which Hotel Company Considers is Inadequate—Equity Proceedings to Follow.

Litigation that promises to be vigorous was begun in court at Somerset this morning when the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company filed a bond to cover damages that may be occasioned by their proceedings in condemning Laurel run at Markleton. The bond is for only $3,500, which the Markleton Hotel Company, which is fighting the action of the railroad company, claims is not sufficient.

The railroad company state that they need the water of Laurel run for their locomotives and for other purposes on the Connelville division. They propose to build a pumping plant at that point and pump the water from the run, damming it at a point above the railroad, it is claimed.

The Markleton Hotel Company uses the water from Laurel run and claim their supply will be curtailed and perhaps cut off entirely if the railroad is permitted to take the water.

Jesting Ends in Squire's Office

Harry Ritchie of town was arrested yesterday by Constable H. A. Smith of the West Side on a charge of assault and battery made by J. J. Evans, also of town. The prosecutor and defendant are employed at the West Penn Cold Storage plant in the West Side and the trouble occurred at the noon hour yesterday over a trifling. The young men were at the stable and began throwing water on each other. Evans thinking Ritchie was carrying the fun too far and was getting a little too rough, became angry and wanted to fight. One word brought on another and Ritchie, it is alleged, gave Evans a beating. Evans has a cut on the lip and a bruise on his head. The case was settled by the defendant paying the costs.

Every Day Dictionary Day

Every day now is dictionary day at The Daily Courier office. Yesterday 52 copies were sold.

Such a demand marked the opening of the distribution of the Webster's New Standard Dictionary illustrated that the success of the popular educational venture is assured, and more books are being rushed here by the hundreds.

Do not delay to reach the Dictionary Department before the entire 1911 edition of the most modern dictionary is exhausted.

Start clipping the required six consecutive coupons today. The valuable books are being distributed from the office of The Daily Courier. If you can not come, write your order, enclosing coupons, expressing bonus and 22 cents postage.

Many professional men filed along in line between stenographers and school girls on Saturday to obtain dictionaries. Doctors, lawyers and clergymen all seemed anxious to possess the handsomely bound black leather volume, which looks like a fine Bible and which they describe as "comprehensive" and above all else "handy."

"I've got plenty of dictionaries," a prominent physician said who came with two sets of coupons and carried away two dictionaries, one for his home and one for his office, "but this at the handout one that I have seen, I'll use it ten times as much as I use the others."

"I am surprised at the extensive vocabulary this book contains," an educator said. "It even has the modern slang which has come to be everyday English with us."

Be sure your dictionary is 1911 and contains the 1910 Census. Be up to date.

Union Supply Picnic Today

The second annual outing of the employees of the Union Supply Company is being held today at Shady Grove Park. All the stores in the company are closed for the occasion and a lay off day is given, affording the employees an opportunity to enjoy a day's outing. Special cars were run this morning to the park and by noon a large and jolly crowd had assembled at the popular little park.

The picnicers were all supplied with well filled baskets and there is no doubt but that all present will be well fed. Different kinds of amusements have been arranged for the afternoon and the committee in charge has made every possible arrangement for the entertainment of the picnicers. The various amusements at the park are being well patronized.

Sharrah was formerly employed as a printer on The Courier at Connelville and has relatives there.

SCHOOL BOARD IS SUED FOR $25,000 AS RESULT OF GAS ESCAPING INTO ROOMS; MISS EMMA BRADY PLAINTIFF IN ACTION.

Case Is Brought in the United States District Circuit Court in Pittsburgh and Will Come Up for Trial at the November Term of Court—The Statement of Miss Brady's Case.

In the United States Circuit Court at Pittsburgh a damage suit has been entered against the Connelville School Board as a result of the exposure of the teachers and students who were subjected to several months ago by the escape of deadly gaseous fumes into the rooms. Miss Emma Noys Brady, a teacher in the High School, today entered suit against the Board for $25,000 damages through Attorneys Marshall & Marshall of Pittsburgh.

The defendants, G. W. Gallagher, Bert J. Thomas, James Darr, Joseph Mason, A. W. Bishop, Dr. T. H. White, W. W. Smith, John A. Guller, John W. Buttermore, F. C. Rose, H. C. Norton, J. A. Armstrong, Clarence Hays, R. O. Thomas, J. R. Davidson, Joseph Metzgar, A. G. Fornwalt, James C. Long, Charles Balalay, Alex. Hart and J. M. Herpleck, are summoned to answer the plaintiff, Emma Noys Brady, in a plea of trespass upon a cause of action arising substantially as follows:

The plaintiff is a citizen and resident of the state of Kentucky, and the defendants are all citizens of Pennsylvania, and reside in or near Connelville, Pa.

G. W. Gallagher for more than a year past has been the president of the Connelville High School board. Bert J. Thomas has been Secretary of the said board, and the other defendants were directors of said High School.

In the early fall of 1910 the defendants elected the plaintiff one of the teachers of said Connelville High School, and she continued to teach therein until the end of the year, April, May and June, 1911.

The defendants, as officers and directors of said school board in the fall of 1910 employed the Smith-Baker Company to put in a mechanical blast heating and ventilating system in the High School at Connelville, Pa., according to plans and specifications provided by the engineer and architect in charge of the work, the general purposes being to heat the school rooms when necessary, and to supply fresh air to the teachers and pupils occupying said rooms. According to the plans and specifications, the exhaust pipe from the engine room was to go in a certain direction and connect with the smoke stack and then continue on to the roof; but instead of putting the exhaust pipe from the engine room in the place indicated by the plans and specifications, the said exhaust pipe was taken through the fresh-air room and made to enter the smoke stack in the fresh-air room. The aperture where the exhaust pipe entered the smokestack was about 16 inches in diameter and the exhaust pipe was only about five inches in diameter. The remainder of the aperture, about a square foot of surface, was left open, and the fan in the fresh-air room caused a suction of fumes through the aperture, drawing them into the fresh-air room and sending the fumes into the mixing room, then into the pipes and then to the various rooms of the building. This caused the fumes, which were deadly, to enter the rooms, and the fumes were deadly, and the fumes were deadly, and the fumes were deadly.

The committee also closed for two days of Italian fireworks—Applications Are Coming In Rapidly For Space and Places in Parade.

Delightful Orchard Party. A delightful orchard party was held at the home of E. P. Halfhill at Moyor on Saturday evening by Miss Daisy Halfhill and Miss Dollie Davis. Various games were played until 11:30 when a dainty lunch was served. There were 21 guests present.

Small Boy Dies. George Sennett, small son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Sennett, of Uniontown, died yesterday morning at the home of his parents on Prospect street. Funeral from the family residence tomorrow afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Sennett formerly resided in the West Side.

Metored to Dawson. Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Evans and guests Mrs. Stokes of McKeesport, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wetherill, motored to Dawson this morning and are guests of Miss Elizabeth Smith.

Married in Wheeling. John G. Harris, aged 19 years, and Sara Beall, aged 18 years, of Smithfield; R. C. Jennings of Uniontown, and Lillian A. McNeill of Stenhouseville, O., were granted marriage licenses in Wheeling, W. Va., Saturday.

Gas was used in the boilers, and the smoke due with which the boilers were connected was in the fresh-air room where the supply blower or fan, which supply blower which ultimately creates a pressure of about one-half ounce per cubic inch could not get its supply through the air cells it naturally got it from a source which offered less resistance, and as the opening was left in the smoke stack as hereinafter referred to, to introduce the exhaust pipe, the result was that the blower, not being able to get its supply of air from the proper source, whipped back the unconsumed gases (Monoxide), and as every school room in the building was connected directly with the fresh air room, these gases were whipped back to the fresh air room and thus in the main course reached the school rooms above, all through the neglect and want of care of the defendants. These Monoxide are deadly poisons, and great harm results in a very brief time from breathing them.

The defendants were grossly negligent in allowing the construction of the pipes in such a way that where the exhaust pipe entered the smoke stack an aperture of about 16 inches

PREPARATIONS FOR OUR CELEBRATION.

Meeting Last Evening Showed Everything Moving Along Quite Smoothly.

A BALLOONIST IS COMING

Committee Also Has Closed For Two Days of Italian Fireworks—Applications Are Coming In Rapidly For Space and Places in Parade.

Preparations for Connelville's Three-Day Celebration are moving with Walter W. Rabb, of Columbus, for two balloons ascensions on each of the last two days of the celebration. And by the way, those ascensions are not to be of the ordinary kind. They were made to order and are guaranteed to be thrillers. Rabb is one of the most celebrated aeronauts in the country and is as much at home in the air as the ordinary man is on the side walk. He goes up a distance anywhere between 4,000 and 5,000 feet, performing on the trapeze on the way, when he cuts loose and starts to descend in a parachute. This parachute is discarded shortly and another is brought into play and is used until the landing is made. These flights are without doubt the most hair-raising performances ever witnessed, and will prove a big attraction.

The committee also closed for two days of Italian fireworks with a New Castle firm, and Connelville is promised the finest pyrotechnic display she has ever had.

Applications for space in the parade are rapidly coming in and no fears are entertained of the success of this feature. Automobiles, floats, civic and military organizations and fraternal orders will all be represented. A number of foreign organizations have applied for position and it is expected to have a number of them in line. The banquet and of the celebration has been assured. It is expected to announce the aids tomorrow.

Road Supervisors are Prosecuted

Charles Yowler, James May and George Newcomer, Road Supervisors of Connelville township were arrested yesterday afternoon by Constable B. Rottler for alleged violation of the laws governing the caring for township roads. Constable Charles Wilson is the prosecutor. The defendants are to appear before Squire W. P. Clark this afternoon.

It is said that the number of stones lying loose about the roads of the northern part of the township, especially on what is known as Mt. Pleasant road, has caused great annoyance.

was left open so that the exhaust pipe, which was only about 5 inches in diameter, did not fill the same but left the balance of the aperture open, causing a suction of the fumes through the aperture, as hereinafter described, and drew the said poisonous fumes or gases entering the fresh-air room, and then into the mixing room and then into the pipes to the various school rooms of the building.

In the latter part of June, 1911, the defendants had this aperture closed and plastered; but this was not long after the receipt of the injuries by the plaintiff as hereinafter set forth. The defendants were also negligent in allowing the said exhaust pipe to be taken through the fresh-air room and in not having the same insulated in the location provided for by the plans and specifications.

On May 8, 1911, the children of the High School complained of the atmosphere in the room and of headaches, and during the third period, 11 o'clock, said children became drowsy, and when the plaintiff attempted to get up from her chair, she was dizzy and sick at the stomach by reason of having inhaled the poisonous fumes (Monoxide), which had been brought into the room through the negligence of the defendants.

She was attacked with chills, and others in the room were also similarly affected by reason of inhaling the poisonous gases and fumes as aforesaid. The plaintiff was taken to her home; but not being able to walk was assisted to an automobile and then taken home. She was attended by physicians and given medicine and tried to walk, but could not. Thereafter she attended the school Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and without her knowledge was again subjected during those days to the inhalation of said poisonous fumes or gases. Although very ill, she returned to school the following week and continued to inhale the poisonous gases without knowing she was doing so, and from time to time resumed her duties at the school.

Her physician then sent her to Markleton sanitarium for rest and treatment, where she arrived on Friday, the 19th day of May, 1911, and remained there until the 25th day of May, 1911, when she returned to Connelville to resume her duties; but her physicians reported that she was unfit for work and forbade her to return to the school room. The plaintiff then returned to the Markleton sanitarium where she was confined for a long time, suffered great pain and endured much misery and has been in a very weak and debilitated condition ever since, and has received injuries through the negligence of the defendants as aforesaid of a permanent and lasting character, and from which it will be impossible to ever fully recover.

Prior to the injuries received as aforesaid through the negligence of the defendants, plaintiff was a strong, healthy girl and never had been sick. By reason of the injuries aforesaid, the plaintiff's liver, heart, stomach and intestines have been greatly impaired and she has been unable to sleep or eat as heretofore, and will in the future be greatly impaired in health and will be an invalid for life, and has lost her compensation as a teacher from the time she ceased work until the end of the year, and will in the future for many years to come be incapable of following her employment or occupation as teacher; and may never be able to pursue said occupation, or work at any kind of other employment, all through the negligence of the defendants as aforesaid.

Whereof, by reason in the premises, the plaintiff has been damaged in a large sum, to wit, in the sum of $25,000. The case will be tried at the November term of court.

Visitor From the West. Miss Blanche Barfield of Paola, Kansas, was the guest of Mrs. H. D. Barnhart of Dunbar township Saturday. The Barfield family are old residents of Dunbar township and moved west seven years ago. Miss Barfield expects to leave for her home the first of August.

ROBBERS LOOT BIG STORE AT ROCKWOOD USING A TEAM.

Small Articles of Hardware and Jewelry to Value of $250 Were Taken by Bold Thieves Who Have Been Active in That Vicinity.

Robbers last night again looted a store at Rockwood, getting away with between $250 and $300 worth of small articles in hardware and jewelry. The store of Henry Yuley in the heart of the town was broken into and the goods were carried away from the back door in a wagon. Everything the thieves could get their hands on in the cases and on the shelves were taken. The articles were mostly small pieces of jewelry, knives, pistols, rifles and shot guns. Two and three of each of an article would be taken, the thieves getting an assortment that would make a fair start for a small country store.

The store is located on East Main street, but no noise or suspicious movements was noticed by any pedestrians about the place last night. This is one of a number of robberies that have been committed in a similar manner at Rockwood and vicinity within the past few months.

VETERAN SOLDIERS HAVE GREAT CHANCE

Eligible to Register for Land Drawings Without Making Trip

TO THE FAR NORTHWEST

All Members Who Saw Service in the Tenth or Other Regiments During the Spanish-American or Philippine Wars Eligible.

The chance has come through the proclamation of President Taft, which has just been issued and opens lands within the Fort Berthold Indian reservation in North Dakota, embracing about 150,000 acres and other tracts within the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations in South Dakota embracing about 450,000 acres.

The prices placed on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservation lands range from 25 cents to $5.00 per acre. If one is a veteran of the Civil or Spanish war his pathway toward securing a quarter section of the lands is made easy for he will not have to travel to North or South Dakota points to register his name as an applicant to buy. He will simply have to transact this business through an agent and if his name is drawn from the various boxes while the land lasts he will have the opportunity of getting 160 acres for $40 provided he buys at the minimum price.

Others, if they desire Fort Berthold lands, will have to go either to Bismarck, Minot, Platteau, Garrison, or Ryder, North Dakota, before they can register their names. For the other lands they have their privilege of going either to Chamberlain, Jallais, Gregory or Rapid City, South Dakota for the registration.

All registrations will be open for three weeks.

The North Dakota registrations begin August 14 and those in South Dakota October 2.

Stanley's Coup Proved a Fizzle

United Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, July 2.—Chairman Stanley's promised sensation developed yesterday at the hearing of the steel investigating committee. It was a printed copy of what purported to be an agreement between steel plate manufacturers in November, 1909. It was brought to Stanley by the job printer who had printed it for the Lukens Steel Company at Coatesville, Pa. He was charged by Eugene C. Bonnell of Wayne, Pa., who has been much heard of in politics in the eastern part of Pennsylvania. The job printer's name is F. H. Kaufman, and he also publishes a newspaper. It had been supposed that all the copies of the agreement had been destroyed. J. B. Van Orman, general sales agent of the Lukens Steel Company, told the committee that copies of the agreement had been sent out to the steel plate manufacturers for their signatures, but that they had all been returned unsigned, and that they had been burned, either by himself or some other member or officer of his company. He admitted that though the documents had not been signed the manufacturers had acted under the terms of the agreement. He thought that it was in 1909 or 1907 that the plate association ceased to exist.

United Press Telegram.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 2.—Gilbert H. Perkins, the aged head of the Pittsburgh detective agency bearing his name, who is on trial together with Charles Franklin charged with conspiracy to extort $20,000 from Millionaire Charles H. Strong, took the stand today in his own behalf.

Perkins told of his business career and told how he had been called to Erie to look into the Scott macabre matter. He said it was his opinion that two or more men had gone into the tomb and despoiled it simply for the purpose of intimidating Strong. For that reason, he said, he expected that letters asking for money would later on be sent Strong.

SURETY OF PEACE

Case Tried on Monday Before Justices of the Peace Clark.

Joe Marko and Tony Boyero, Italian brothers-in-law residing on Prospect street, had some differences which resulted in Tony making information against Joe before Squire Clark for surety of the peace.

It appears that Tony boarded with Joe; but for some reason or other desired a change of venue and notified Joe he was going to leave. Joe didn't like the idea of letting the revenue get away and protested, so much so, Tony says, that he didn't consider it safe to have Joe anywhere near him, so he took his troubles to the Squire. Constable R. E. Stillwagon soon had the defendant in tow; but on arriving at the seat of justice a compromise was effected before the trial started. Joe paid the costs, said he didn't mean it and promised not to do it again.

PRIDE IN PULLMAN CARS.

It May Force a Further Reduction in Price of Berths.

Chicago, Ill., railroad men report that there are so many empty upper berths in the Pullman sleeping cars since the law went into effect reducing the rate on them, that a proposition is now under consideration to reduce the rates still further on a combination plan.

The new idea, which has been submitted for the approval of the Pullman Company officials, will give a traveler both the upper and lower berths for 50 cents in addition to the price of the lower berth. The railroad men say that travelers, even though their money is not too plentiful, are unwilling to ask for a lower-priced upper berth for fear of looking "cheap."

Strict School Rules.

John Wesley held that school children should do without holidays altogether. When he opened Kingswood school in 1759 he announced that "the children of tender parents, so called, have no business here, for they will not be broken in favor of any person whatsoever. Nor is any child received unless his parents agree that he shall observe all the rules of the house and that they will not take him from school, no, not for a day, till they take him for good and all." Further, no play days were permitted, and no time was ever allowed for play on the ground that he who plays when he is a child will play when he becomes a man. Every Friday the children had to work till 3 in the afternoon without breaking their fast—London Chronicle.

Remarkable Case.

"How much your little boy resembles your husband!" said the cunning politician.

"I've always heard," she replied, "that people grow to look like those they are much with, but this is quite a remarkable case. We only adopted the little fellow last week."

In His Interest.

Jack—You know when Mabel rejected me last week I told you my troubles, and you promised to help me. Well, she accepted me last night. Am I to thank you for interceding for me?

Cousin Belle—Not exactly, dear boy. I simply intimated to Mabel that I was after you myself.

A Cool Wave Coming From West

If the prediction of the weather bureau proves authentic, the temperature for the month of July will be unique in Western Pennsylvania history. During the first few days of the month the mercury registered the highest temperatures in the district for years. It was predicted last night that before this morning it would register the lowest temperature during the month of July since official records were kept.

The lowest temperature so far this month has been 65, but by this morning had dropped to 52 degrees. The cold wave is caused by an unusually high pressure coming from the west, at present centered over North Dakota.

The cold wave has been accompanied by a stiff breeze, ranging in velocity from 11 to 20 miles an hour, which made the evening more like one in the fall than in the middle of summer. Light wraps were in evidence among the female pedestrians last night, and the streets were more than ordinarily deserted. It will not get much warmer until Thursday or Friday, according to the prediction. Then normal conditions will prevail.

Perry of Uniontown is dean of the school.

THE CAUSE OF ECZEMA

is germ life that burrows under and feeds on the skin. The way to cure ECZEMA is to remove the cause by washing away with a clean, penetrating liquid, the germ life and poisons that cause the trouble.

We have a preparation that will do this. The first application will stop the itching and give prompt relief to an irritated, itching or inflamed skin. If you are a sufferer from skin or scalp eruptions in any form, try one bottle of this clean scientific preparation, we are confident you will be pleased with the results from the use of this standard preparation for eczema.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY.

An Honor Which Had Its Birth in the Middle Ages.

The ceremony of presenting the freedom of the city as an honor arose in the middle ages, when such right was not acquired by mere domicile. No stranger could move into a medieval town and go into business, his own lawful occupation or the civic activities. First he must become enrolled in the guild of his trade, then he had to undergo an apprenticeship of full seven years before he could be admitted to its livery. Then only and thus only could he arrive at the freedom of his city.

As a reward for high deeds these medieval city republics sometimes conferred on such strangers as had conferred on them the freedom of the city by column act of the burgesses and liberties without the apprenticeship of servitude. Every such recipient of a city's freedom became at once a burgess, free to dwell, free to engage in trade, free to vote for the civic rulers and to aspire to the civic chair. The key was the visible sign of this freedom—the city gates, closed at sunset against the stranger and the foe, opened to the burgess' key at all hours, as the door of his own home—Argonaut.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that draft germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which can be successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. Olga Woodard, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 25, 1911.

THE CAMPAIGN OF
THE KENTUCKY COLONEL.

The Democratic investigation of the United States Steel Corporation is developing into something of a political mine's nest.

Chairman Arthur Oswald Sumner makes one of his fast and furious and famous charges upon Pittsburgh every now and then, and comes back to Washington stuffed with a large variety of corporation scandal which he proceeds to endeavor to exploit to the best of his Democratic billy for the benefit of the Democratic party.

The last Stanley charge was redeemed in the midnight of dark secrecy, and resulted in the capture of an alleged pooling agreement between a number of steel manufacturers. This he bore proudly back to Washington, where he was accorded a Roman Triumph
by the diminished but demonstrative Legions of the Democratic Press.

It appears, however, that the pooling agreement is dated way back in 1909, when pooling was customary and to all intents and purposes proper. It was, furthermore, before the United States Steel Corporation was formed.
One of the high contracting parties named in the pool was the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited.

General Stanley does not regard the matter of dates as being important. He assumes with that charming confidence which always animates every Democratic disposition when considering sins of omission and commission on the part of the Republican party that all doubts are justly and properly resolved against the accused.
The existence of a pooling agreement in 1909 is to his eager mind convincing evidence that it remains unbroken and intact at the present moment; and, like Carthage, it must be destroyed.

Warrior Stanley has evidently not read the newspapers as closely as he would have known that any steel pool or any semblance of a price agreement was deliberately smashed to smithereens within the past few months.

He would also have known that the pooling agreement must have been far from cohesive and binding, when it was so suddenly and easily broken.

It is evident, and the surface indications are confirmed by inside information, that steel manufacturers by common consent and through common interest have maintained a certain scale of prices for some years past. There was business enough for all and no incentive to cut prices to profitless figures. Perhaps if trade conditions had been different price conditions would have been different. In support of this theory, we have only to mention that when demand fell off in 1911, the price agreements were withdrawn.

Admiral Stanley is using up barrels of the powder of publicity, but he hasn't hit often, and he has so far failed to sink a bloomin' thing.

The Kentucky Colonel's campaign has been characterized by much noise and little damage.

THE PROPER PUBLICATION OF THE LAWS.

For almost a quarter of a century,
The Courier and its editor have been preaching the equitable doctrine of publicity of the enactments of the Pennsylvania Legislature immediately upon their becoming laws for the government of the people, but the proposition has always been objected to because of its cost. It has also been intimated, and sometimes very plainly, that the proposition was not without selfish motives.

Yet most of the bills proposed by the press of Pennsylvania bearing on this question provided a compensation to the newspapers that hurriedly covered the cost of publication. So far from being graft, the offer of the editors was public-spirited and patriotic.
The Legislature which recently adjourned declined to consider a proposed bill for the publication in the newspapers of the Acts of Assembly were passed and signed by the Governor of the State of the laws, being merely a notice to put those interested on their guard so that they could procure from the State Printer copies of any laws particularly affecting them or their interests.

The propriety if not the necessity of such a law is illustrated in the fact that McKeesport citizens have just awakened to the fact that at the last session the Legislature enacted a higher bill for their benefit. The fact was unknown to the people and the politicians of the Tube City until accidentally discovered yesterday.

Connellsville is about to enter upon third class city government. The laws regulating such government were materially modified at the last session of the Legislature, yet until a few days ago nobody knew what they were.
These cases bring home to the minds of the people the serious injustice being done to them by the State in not giving some reasonable public notice of enactments which the citizen is required to observe.

The Burglars' Union of Allegheny county, who are now in real trouble, are honest people with real ambitions. They had better have them pointed some other color in order to avoid possible suspicion. The joy riding in the midnight hours.

The Full Crew law will have to stand the Constitutional test in the courts. The question involved in a doubtful one. The exigencies of politics are known to have been responsible for the passage of laws which the courts were expected to nullify.

Destructive fires are reported in Turkey. The Turkey is being cooked.

Justice Clark is a modern Solomon on Down law.

A Conneltsville woman declares that she had to sell liquor to support her children. The customers probably drank it out of Christian charity, not because they liked the stuff.

The Salkle townships Italian who fell from his bunk and broke his neck was probably afflicted with some other disorder.

The Courier is conducting a wonderfully successful campaign of education in Fayette county.

A Leokoning man is accused of hooking a purse with $10 while hunting for fishing holes. Pretty good catch.

Voices in The Night.

By Isaac of Yukon.

A citizen of this Republic can become reconciled to the finding of a murderer, but he can never be convinced that the national dawn is approaching as long as a neighbor's dog, which barks at night, is not put to sleep.
When a good neighbor dies in the evening, or when a thief steals your chick, or when a watermelon is there in the night, but this grade of brown trouble comes at great intervals. It is excusable. The uneducated howl of an uneducated dog is constantly irritating. He is like the old-school grade of Literal Punishment, with the exception that the dog owner has to get a new barker when the old one wears out. The endless chain of hot annoyance never dies, or at least it is showing no signs of death now.

The man who wrote the following lines is dead. Had he split kindling wood or carried in coal his family would have thought more of him than they did for writing an ode to his dog.

"I like to see a little dog
And pat him on the head;
How prettily he wags his tail
Whenver he is fed."

These lines constitute a sympathetic recognition for First Reader pupils, telling them how to appreciate the fountain source of hydrophobia and the real, bed-rock encouragement for Public Institutes. The poem should read:

"I like to see a little dog
With a bullet in his head."

A fellow then can take a sleep
When he lies upon his bed.

The poet also said: "Some little dogs are very good and very useful too."
That time and place is at a phosphate mill. Bone dust is an excellent thing to make beans and tomatoes hump.
Bone dust of one non-tax milk combining demon will make weeds grow on the grave of your worst enemy, if you wish to be as mean as the dog owner who makes effort to proserve the peace of his own town.

There are two sides to this great question of voices in the night, but the one side which your Isaac is interested in is the side of the dog. The dog question is like the whiskey question.
As long as whiskey is made, sober people will be annoyed with drunkenness in job lots or by retail. The reader can take a think on the barking dog situation.

A New Move
Against Brewery

District Attorney John S. Miller has introduced an innovation in Somerset county in bringing to justice illegal liquor dispensers. Hitherto the agents of out-of-town breweries have been prosecuted for selling beer without license. Now, however, the brewery itself is to be haled into court to answer charges of violating the liquor laws.

The Emmerring brewery, of Johnstown, is the first to be defendant in such a case, which opens a campaign having for its object the stamping out of illegal beer selling. Constable G.
Newton Schrock, of Somerset, has returned from Johnstown, where he arrested John Emmerring, Charles Emmerling and Ernest Emmerring, owners of the Emmerring Brewing Company. All three of the defendants furnished bail in the sum of $300 for their appearance at September Criminal Court, with Attorney Percy Allen
Rose, of Johnstown, as surety, before Alderman M. H. Deenman, of Johnstown.

The Emmerrings are charged by Constable Schrock, proceeding on information received, with selling liquor without license. It is alleged that the defendants illegally shipped beer to Lafayette and other places in Somerset county on May 6th, last, as well as before and after that date.

The specific violation of the liquor laws alleged is that the Emmerring concern delivered the amber fluid to its Somerset county consumers by prepaid express, constituting clearly a sale at Lafate and other places instead of at the brewery.

The Emmerring proceedings will be watched with interest by brewers and liquor dealers, as it is the first instance of its kind in Somerset county.

CHURCH ELECTION AT SCOTTDALE.

Methodists Will Elect Their Delegates by Vote of Congregation

TOMORROW EVENING AT 8:30

Esther A. Trimble, First Depositor of Scottdale's Postal Savings Bank,
Roy Morrow Visits Scenes of His Boyhood and is Surprised at Growth.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, July 25.—For the first time probably in the history of the congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Scottdale the opportunity to be given the opportunity to enjoy an election. The election will be for delegates and alternate to the conference in Wilkesburg in October and the election will take place following prayer meeting tomorrow evening, which will close at 8:30 o'clock. It is probable candidates will be nominated that evening and each member of the congregation over 21 years of age is eligible to vote or to be voted for as delegate or alternate. The delegates will be elected first and then the alternate, both cannot be elected at the same time. The ballots will be written and the election conducted under the regular rules. Dr. A. W. Strickler is the judge and Mr. L. H. Hines and Theodore C. Hickey, the tellers for the election. Heretofore in the church the official board has attended to choosing the delegates, but this time the congregation is going to have that pleasure.

Rev. R. B. Mansell, D. D., the pastor, went to Pittsburgh yesterday to attend the opening meeting of the Committee on Memorial of that committee which prepares memorials to present to conference. Several ministers and ministers' wives have died during the year, one of the deceased was formerly a minister here, Rev. O. L. P. Graham.

Savings Bank Opens.

The U. S. Postal Savings Bank made the fifth savings institution in town when it was opened at the local office yesterday, by Inspector W. W. Williams of Greensburg, who has charge of this district. Postmaster B. C. Fretts prepared the first depositor's papers. The first depositor in the bank was Esther A. Trimble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Trimble. The little girl put in a dollar and got a deposit book and 10 cents and not a savings card with one 10 cent stamp printed on it and three to paste on. As soon as there are 10 stamps on the card she will turn the card in and receive credit for $1. Savings may be made by 10 cents at a time in that way. C. Lee Mellinger had wanted to be the first depositor, but arrived a little too late. The First National Bank is the depository for all the funds of the Postal Savings Bank here. Miss Sallie Monroe will attend to the office.

Roy Morrow Here.

E. Roy Morrow, of Pittsburg, arrived in town yesterday to look over the preliminary of the sale which his brother, Clarence, will cry at North Scottdale on Saturday next. Roy grew up in this town and in telling of the changes since he was a boy shows the town's growth is astonishing, while the improvements that he points out as having come to pass in the last couple of years are likely to interest one who lives here all the time and to whom the changes and improvements do not come with so much force by reason of daily seeing them grow. Mr. Morrow is greatly pleased with prospects here, and is glad to get back among old friends.

Visiting Classmate.
W. R. Buck, of Fayetteville, Arkansas, is in Scottdale, visiting Edgar Lowe. The two young men were classmates at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

The concert was under the direction of Ben Smith, the musical director at the opera house, and a pleasing program was rendered. There were several members of the order present from Connelville. Among those who took part from here were Harry Dillon, Frank Horne and J. Fink, in a Hebrew monologue, and others. Mr. Smith was the accompanist.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS

"Are you happy?" he demanded forthwith and held his breath, for on her answer everything he prized depended. "Are you happy with him—Blackstock?"

It was like cold water in her face. She gasped and drew herself up, straight and slim, defiant. "What right have you to ask me that?"

"None but that of a man who loved you once, and who, though he may not, loves you still—whatever you may think him, Katherine."

She held her answer, quivering with indignation. That he should dare—! Yet there were two things in his attitude to calm her: an impassioned note, pulsing, and a simple dignity that left little foothold for resentment.

As for Coast, momentarily while she did not reply, the issue hung in the balance, whether he should speak or not: whether enlighten her forthwith or leave her (were she happy in her marriage) in her fool's paradise. He felt himself a prey to discordant impulses, pride and generosity counselling him, each with a double tongue.

"I hold your happiness above all else," he resumed as the pause lengthened—far above my own, Katherine. That is why I ask you: are you happy?"

"I have no regrets," she told him steadily.

"That doesn't answer me," Her eyes wandered beneath his searching glance. She turned away and stared off into the vacancy of the fog.

"How is one to tell?" she said presently. "Isn't happiness difficult to define? A thing of comparative values? . . . I am content, that much I know. I have discovered something in life higher than the gratification of self; I have learned that to sorrow means more than to be served. I married the man I loved; he no longer, could hardly do without me. I am a help to him in his work; he would probably be unable to continue it without my assistance. . . . I have my career, as he has his, as you have yours. Who has not? . . . But a year is a long time! I have learned much since. . . . She took a deep breath. "Yes," she concluded

She kept her face averted.

evenly: "I think I may say I am happy, Garrett."

But she kept her face averted.

"And this," he asked, stepping to her side and lightly touching her bare forearm with his finger.

Just below her left elbow four marks, like blueish stripes set close together, stood out like wounds upon her delicate skin, where the flesh had been bruised by the cruel pressure of a man's strong fingers.

At his touch she recoiled with a half stifled cry, her face blazing.

"Don't—don't!" she gasped, trying with faltering fingers to pull down the sleeve. But realizing that it was too late, that he had already seen, she recovered, sullenly leaving the sleeve as it was.

"I'm sorry," said Coast solemnly; "I didn't mean to touch you. I didn't think—had forgotten what—what I may not expect you to forget. Only that in his mark, Katherine."

"Well," she flashed defiantly, "and what if it is? Is he, or am I, answerable to you? Can he not touch me as he likes?"

trating gaze disconcerted her; her anger rang unconquering even to herself. "It was an accident," she stammered lamely. "One of the servants argued him—they are Chinese and stupid—and in his blindness he mistook me for the man and caught my arm."

"It must have hurt," said Coast, trying to believe her.

She was silent, facing him with a face of bravado. He bowed.

"I beg your pardon; it was, as you suggest, none of my affair. I merely happened to notice, and it startled me. Will you be good enough to tell me the way to the beach?"

Only the woman indicated a path leading away from the gate.

Still he lingered, letting his eyes drink their fill of her; and now, in a swift flash of certitude, that never had been more dear to him than in this moment of renunciation, that never would his heart's allegiance waver from her whatever her mood or circumstance. Whether she suffered him or no now sedulously dis-countenanced him, his queen could do no wrong. . . . With a sigh, inaudible, he went to the gate.

"There's nothing I can serve you in, Katherine!"

"Nothing—only go away."

"Then good-by." He shrugged slightly, lifted his cap and put himself outside the doorway.

"But, Garrett—"

He stopped. She moved down to the fence.

"Garrett," she begged, breathless with the anxiety roused by an unexpected latent fear, "promise me some thing."

He looked down into her upturned, plaintive with appeal. "Name it," said he.

"If by any chance you should meet him—Douglas—I'm not sure where he is—don't please."

"I'll be careful," he assured her. "Don't worry; I shan't let him know who I am. If possible, I'll keep out of his way."

Her eyes were eloquent of inexpressible relief. "Thank you," she faltered, keenly alive to the trite inequity of the words. "And, Garrett, you're not—not angry with me?"

"Angry? With you?"

She was twisting her hands together. "I can't seem to forget," she said in a tremor. "Two tried—I only wish I might—but I can't. I can't. Remember that, if I seem unkind."

"You haven't been unkind to the man who shot Van Turl," he said, in spite of himself.

She did not seem to hear, or, if she heard, to read the riddle in his enigmatical answer. "It isn't tant alone," she protested; "that, perhaps, I could forget in time. You weren't yourself; Douglas has always insisted you were not. But O Garrett, Garrett! it was unmanly, it was unworthy of you to try to shield yourself by accusing him! That I don't forget, that I'm afraid I shall never learn to forgive. Why, Garrett, why did you permit that man Warburton to do it?"

He heard her out in pitiful patience, too deeply moved for anger or resentment to have any place in the conflict of his thoughts.

"As to that," he said, his tone colorless, "I would ask you to suspend judgment if you hadn't already pronounced it. But I leave you this to consider: one of two men only could have killed Van Turl. Douglas we expect by mutual consent; Blackstock admits and I admit he didn't do it. There remains Blackstock and myself, neither of whom could have been convicted on the other's unsupported evidence."

"You are cowardly to say this to me, when he's not here!"

But he had a level and emotionless look with which to meet the impassioned scorn she showed him.

"Perhaps; but don't forget I asked only the opportunity to say as much to you."

Has it ever occurred to you that Douglas, not your husband, sent me to Sing Sing—that had Douglas been in my pay, Blackstock would now be occupying the cell I occupied?"

He and himself well in hand. Other wise she must have seen how deeply moved he was. Simply to watch her and not give way was almost more than he could endure. His eyes kindled and his face blazed, and his heart ached—with his love for her, the longing that he must never voice, but she did not see.

She was answering him; her words came in a torrent, stumbling over one another: her voice vibrant with unutterable contempt sounded in his hearing like the hymning of angels.

"Oh," she cried in longing—"unutterable!" And the desire to catch her in his arms and stop her lips with kisses was like a pain. "I never dreamed that man could be so low, so evil!" she said; and he wished himself beneath the foot of the stamper. "I hate you!" she told him; and beneath his breath he whispered over and over, "I love you, I love you!"

"I ask nothing," he said when she had to stop, as much for lack of words as breath, "more than that you think it over. You've told me what you think of me—and I dare say you're somewhat justified. But think it over, you owe me and you owe yourself that. Weigh the worst you know of me before Van Turl was shot against what you have learned of Blackstock since you married him, then judge between us. Try to think which would be the more likely to lose his temper because of a drunken man's maudlin insolence. At best you'll admit it's his word against mine, Douglas's word deciding. And one way or another Douglas was a perjurer; first his testimony convicted me, then his testimony—"

"—of me true?"

— "I think," she demanded, impressed in spite of her own

"Dundas," he explained patiently, "committed suicide in the Tomb a few days ago, after signing a confession that he had testified falsely at my trial. On the strength of that confession I was pardoned by the Governor. You understand?"

Her face was ghastly. "You bought that confession," she asserted between set teeth.

He smiled painfully. "I presume I might have anticipated that. . . ."

"You haven't deny you bought it?"

"From a man contemplating suicide?"

That silenced her. Her poor, distraught with would frame no retort to his inexorable logic. Pulled this way and that by doubts, each more terrible than the fellow, she could no more than sway and stare at him with eyes blank in a face like parchment.

His heart bled for her in her misery. If he could he would have unsaid all that he had said, to ease her suffering. "I feel like a dog," he told her contritely. "To have told you this I meant not to, but . . ."

I couldn't help it. Think and judge between us, Katherine."

"It is a lie!" she wailed. "You have lied to me—everything you have said was lies—all lies. I don't believe you."

But you have poisoned my life for me! Truth or lies what am I to believe? . . . I am the most wretched of women, and you have made me so. Why couldn't you leave me in peace? Why must you have come to make me suffer not flow am I to know what is true, what false? . . . Oh, you are monstrous! You are cruel, cruel! If only you would go and let me forget! . . . Go, go, and let me be!"

In his remorse, reluctant to leave her so, he tried to comfort her with broken protestations that even he knew were rank with insincerity; nor would he willingly have gone before she grew more composed. But at length, despairing, he yielded to her unending importunity, and bowing his head, went his way in a daze of misery as black and dense as the relentless, sullen fog.

CHAPTER X.

Coast had not taken two-score paces along the path to the shore before the day was again darkened by a sudden and heavy thickening of the mists. That brightening glow, which a little time back he had bated with hope as promise of early clearing, was in an instant wiped away. So deep became the gloom to his fancy, as if the fog had been sprayed to saturation with a myriad infinitesimal atoms of ink) that though it was now high morning he found it hard to see the ground beneath his feet.

The came the deluge. The heavens opened and drenched the earth with a flush of rain literally torrential. In a twinkling soaked to the skin, Coast gasped for breath and beat his head to a downpour which whipped him with a million cruel stinging lashes.

Perforce at pause for fear of losing his way, almost beaten thoughtless, seeking any shelter to fly to, he devoted fervent comfort of a sort from the very violence of the squall, which supplied its own assurance that it could not endure long. And briefly, this proved itself: heralded by gradual lightning, the heavier clouds passed off, the initial fury exhausted itself.

For some distance the path led him a wandering way, but this he did not resent, any more than he really resented his scolding, which seemed but an inconsiderable annoyance to a mind preoccupied by his being was altogether obsessed and the process of his thoughts clouded by intense solitude and pity for Katherine—coupled with doubts as to a wisdom of his course.

Was he justified in leaving her, though she begged and commanded him? He felt his understanding hurried by the fog and on of the question like a bat in volleys between two rackets. How could he leave her so? What else could he do? She rejected, discredited, dismissed him definitely, without appeal. She needed him—or somebody to whom he might turn for comfort and protection. Blackstock was not to be trusted; yet she loved him. If, as he protested, she were happy in her strange fashion passing Coast's comprehension, had he any right to keep between her and her happiness, to prevent the circumstances? If, as was the case, Blackstock had married a man in a moment of uncontrollable rage, had Coast any right to leave the woman at the mercy of a temper which might at any moment resume the complexion of homicidal mania? Yet would not his presence there, upon the island, work her more harm than good were he to be discovered?

He was in the humming up, conscious of no choice of action; he could but go his way. She desired it, and though his way (he saw clearly) was to denounce Blackstock to the nearest authority, as sure his arrest and imprisonment.

Thus in an agony of communion with his heart, he came almost unawares a second time to the deserted fishing village, was abruptly conscious of shapes of buildings looming through the mists and driving rain on either hand. And with this recognition recurred the memory of the blind dog and the murdered man.

It was scant consolation that he no longer heard the howling of the dog. Perhaps it had abandoned its dead, perhaps he need no longer fear to meet the blank misery of those uncanly, sightless eyes, perhaps . . .

Even as he warmed that hope, with out warning something more cold and hard than his own flesh touched his hand. He jerked away with an unconrollable shudder and a smothered exclamation of horror, only to realize that the animal had stolen up behind him and thrust its muzzle into his palm. He bent over and petted the dripping head, soothing the dog with muttered words for a moment or two. It snuggled close to him, whining, shivering.

"Poor boy!" he said gently. "So now so, old fellow. . . . Then, surprised: "Hello!" he exclaimed "What's this?"

Beneath his hand the dog had stiffened suddenly, and now stood tense and bristling, a deep and angry growl rumbling in its throat.

Simultaneously, from some inde terminate point he heard the sound of a man's voice, the words indistinctly gushable, accompanied by a grating noise like that made by metal on-counteracting stone.

"Hello, hello!" he said softly, knitting his brows, as he stared down the roadway, in the direction that he must go, the direction from which the sounds seemed to come.

He could see nothing save vague shadows, formless, dim.

A monotonous iteration of muffled sounds forced itself upon Coast's at-attention; a thud, a scraping noise, a soft plop; repeated endlessly. He strained his eyes against the veiling mists, seeming to discern a knot of shadows down the road. The sounds continued, to be interrupted, presently by high-pitched accents, apparently lifted in exasperation; but the intention was foreign and the words unintelligible.

Car Shops Beats Lemont

Special to The Courier. EVERSON, July 25.—The Lemont team was defeated here Saturday in a fast game by a score of 5 to 3. Gray pitched a steady game for the visitors except in the third inning when a base on balls, three hits and two errors netted four runs for the Shops. The hitting of Coughenour and Goodwin for the visitors and the fielding of Byrne featured the game. The fans have been wondering which team third baseman Coughenour really plays with, this being his third appearance on the Everson diamond in a visitors' uniform.
